Pied Pipers To Tackle Stamford's Bull Dogs

If the weather does not prevent it, the Hamlin Pied Pipers will tackle the Stamford Bull Dogs in the bright lights of the Bull Dog's field this Friday night. It promises to be the season's biggest event in this raging sport of the nation.

Hamlin Pipers are the out-fightest-toughest-hardest-fastest little skogies we have seen in many a day. So far, this season, they have had pretty good sailing in the conference games. They took Monday to a dandy tie, 6 and 6 with the count going to the Pipers. Last Friday Rule's pluck team challenged the Pipers here and let the Pied Pipers get away with 24 points to their no score. It was a good game and the boys all handled themselves to the delight of their boosting fans.

This Friday night, if the rain does not stop them, Hamlin will go up against a slightly heavier team, and one that has plenty of backing. It should be an interesting outcome, and it would not surprise Stamford if the Pipers got the Bull Dogs in a close spot. Many cars, well loaded with yelling, boosting fans will accompany the team to Stamford.

Right here the Herald will compliment the Pep Squad. They were on the field at the Rule game last Friday, dolled out in their green and white suits. Hamlin's Pep Squad is all that a good town should desire. No wonder the "Fellers" stay in there and fight when so many pretty girls are over there doing their part, yelling.

Most merchants are asking their customers if they are going to Stamford. Are you?

A COLD RAIN DRENCHES COUNTRY

About noon, Wednesday, a slow rain began and had everything quite damp by night. Then let up.

But by daylight Thursday, it was coming down, plus lightning and thunder in spring time fashion, only it was too cold.

All day this Thursday it has rained. Bar ditches, fields, roads and creeks are full, right on top of that long two-weeks rain of just a few days ago.

Early fall wheat will boom now. The summer was hot but the winter is coming early, making a contrast that hurts, especially cotton.

Before the rain this week, cotton "snatching" was again getting under way, and the gins were kept busy. Excessive foliage has come on the plants and the amount of cotton is hardly visible like it will be when the leaves are killed by frost. Frost will not be far away now, yet the average date is around November 15.

PEP SQUAD NEWS

The Pep Squad of Hamlin High School has come out in a big way this year to cheer the Pied Pipers on to victory. It is one of the best pep squads Hamlin has had for several years. The uniforms are green flannel skirts and white satin blouses and are very attractive.

Composed of thirty high school girls, the squad has been practicing formations, yells and songs so that the girls will really show up on the field.

J. A. CHILDERS DIED SATURDAY NIGHT

After lingering for several weeks, death came to J. A. Childers, at 11:30 o'clock Saturday night, October 17, at his home on Jackson Avenue.

Joseph A. Childers was born in Van Zandt County, Texas, on January 17, 1854, and thus at his death he was 82 years and 9 months of age.

In his early teens, Mr. Childers moved with his parents to Lampasas County, where he grew to full manhood and married Miss Amanda Wier, who walked by his side for a period of 55 years and lives to mourn his going. To this union there were six children, one of whom, a daughter, Myrtle, died at the age of 16 years. Those living are A. D. Childers, of San Angelo, Texas; O. L. Childers of Kapowsin, Washington; Edgar Childers, Hamlin; Carl J. Childers, of Abilene, and Mrs. John H. Vaughan of Hamlin. There are ten grand children.

In 1906 Mr. Childers and family moved to Irion County, Texas, and lived till 1916, when they moved to Jones County and farmed till 1920 northeast of Hamlin. After this they lived about ten years in Sweetwater, and then six years later came to live in Hamlin, having their home on Jackson Avenue, south of the high school building.

The last few years Mr. Childers' health caused him to be more and more feeble, yet he went about meeting his friends with that familiar smile, a greeting so characteristic of his spirit. He was a jolly good citizen and manifested interest in things for the betterment of his country. For perhaps a full year he had been unable to leave his room.

Mr. Childers held his church membership in the Baptist Church at Center, Texas, being proud of this fact.

Funeral services were conducted at his home Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock by the Rev. Sam Morris, of Stamford, after which interment was made in East Cemetery, Hamlin, by the Maples Funeral Home.

Garden Implements

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Morris of Quitaque came down Sunday on their way to the Centennial. Here they were joined by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Morton of the Carlton community and they returned Wednesday. Mr. Morris, formerly Coach here is in the Quitaque school this year.

Mrs. W. R. Wilkerson returned Monday from Winters where she was called by the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. Grady Nicholson. She reports Mrs. Nicholson's condition slightly improved.

Miss Ann Ferguson came over from the State College for Women at Denton, to visit the week-end with her mother, Mrs. B. S. Ferguson.

ROTARY DISTRICT GOV. HERE WED

Wednesday was a prominent day for the Hamlin Rotarians. They had as their honored guests, District Governor, Fred Wimple of Midland, Texas. Governor Fred was accompanied by his official secretary, Hilton Kaderli.

Hamlin is one of about 61 Rotary clubs in the 41st District, and this district is recognized as one of the best in all the world. Rotary is a modern service club that has won favor among the leading people of about 75 nations and countries. Rotary is having much to do in creating a better feeling among nations, and from that point of view is a force to be valuable in every community to each and everyone.

Fred Wimple is a big West Texan, rugged, frank, jolly citizen, who has not only given his time to the ideals of Rotary but is just as enthusiastic for other avenues of service in his community as for Rotary. He made a good, plain effective talk at the Wednesday luncheon at the Morgan Hotel. From the way he ate, we shall expect to see him back again at the first opportunity.

HAMLIN CITY BUYS NEW ST. SWEEPER

Wednesday, City Councilmen, H. O. Cassle and B. L. Jones left for Dallas where they were to buy a new street sweeper for Hamlin.

This is an equipment long needed in this city. Hamlin's Central Avenue, the business district becomes very dusty especially after a rainy spell. The side streets, most of which are not even half-way hard, become muddy and traffic brings in plenty of mud.

For years the sweeper has drifted the trash over the curb and mostly upon the plate glass windows and the side walk. Let's hope the new sweeper will accumulate the trash and heavy dirt as it goes and will be able to give us a clean street each morning, when the street is dry.

FIRE TAKES HOME

IN SOUTH HAMLIN

About 2:10 A. M. Sunday morning fire was discovered in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Bryson, in the Nazarene Addition of South Hamlin, near the old college site.

The alarm brought out the Fire Department but the house was too far out for the water pressure, and the entire building and contents were a complete loss. No one seems to know just how the building caught fire.

Mr. Bryson says that his greatest loss was a number of abstracts he had in a trunk. It will cost money to get copies from the records.

Mmmmm!! For delicious cakes, in front of Bryant-Link Gro. Saturday.

Five Methodist Conferences in Houston

On Nov. 4th, a new experience will be had in Texas Methodism. The Ministers and Lay delegates of all Texas Methodism will have their several Annual Conferences in the city of Houston simultaneously. The business sessions being held separately but the inspirational addresses given in a centrally located large auditorium.

As a local church your loyalty and interest in the work has made it possible for us to have a good report throughout the working of the church. When the finances have been met in full our report will be second to no church in its class. We have had the addition of one hundred members in the past two years and recently a number have expressed their purpose to unite with the church a bit later. Fall in line, won't you good Methodist people and let's close out the year with a complete victory.

Sunday: 11:00 A. M. General subject of message, "Unselfish Courage Rewarded." Sunday evening, shall we hear "Gypsy Smith" or attend our own services here at 7:30? League meets at 6:45.

HOSPITAL PATIENTS

GRADUALLY IMPROVING

Tuesday Clarence C. Renfro reported to the Herald that his wife was still in the Abilene hospital improving slowly.

X-Ray shows that she suffered a broken hip and a fractured vertebrae.

Probably it is not generally known that Mrs. Renfro gave birth to a girl baby on October 10 at the Abilene hospital. It weighed three pounds and four ounces. It is growing nicely in a baby incubator, being fed by an eyedropper. Its name is Shirley Annett. Mrs. Renfro will not likely get away from the hospital for many weeks, and the baby will be kept in the incubator for about four weeks longer.

MRS. HARRISON AT HOME

Mrs. W. H. Harrison, mother of Mrs. Renfro, hurt at the same time, injured by a bad cut of the right hip and a fractured hip bone, has recovered enough to be brought to her home on Thursday of last week.

EX-SERVICE MEN

MEET IN SWEETWATER

An unusually large attendance of ex-service men and their wives is expected at the Seventeenth District convention of the American Legion at Sweetwater this Saturday and Sunday, according to officials of the Oscar McDonald Post, host organization.

A buffet supper for both men and women Saturday night will be followed by a dance on the roof of the Blue Bonnet Hotel. Rev. Bryan Keathley of Mineral Wells, National chaplain, will conduct the church services Sunday morning. A luncheon is to be given Sunday noon and the business sessions of both the legion and auxiliary are to be held Sunday afternoon.

Larry S. Daniel of Abilene, is district executive committeeman for the Seventeenth and Mrs. Lance Thompson of Sweetwater is executive committee woman for the auxiliary. Legionnaires and auxiliary members from adjoining towns have been invited to attend.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S ZONE MEETING AT HAMLIN, OCT. 29

On Thursday, Oct. 29th, the "Young People's Zone Meeting" will be held with the Hamlin Methodist Church. About one hundred young people, leaders of our youth, will gather from the near-by towns for a light lunch after which the McMurry Glee Club and Quartet will favor us with several numbers in the main auditorium and two interesting talks will be given by well informed speakers. Plate lunch will be served in the Social Hall at 7:15 P. M. promptly. The Halloween season will be featured in the decorations and otherwise.

At 8:00 o'clock we will retire to the main auditorium for the program of the evening. We shall be delighted to have the general public assemble for this eight o'clock service, consisting of inspirational talks and several numbers by the McMurry Glee Club of some thirty persons. "Too much knockin' and you'll lose your bearing."

"Pulling for your friends is a good way to boost."

"Rambling 'Round"

-SEEING WHAT'S TO SEE
-HEARING WHAT'S TO HEAR

GYPSY SMITH: Last week and this week till Sunday night many Hamlin people are going to Abilene to hear the famous evangelist, Gypsy Smith, of England. It has been the privilege of "Ye Rambler" to hear Rev. Smith. He is one of the most unique preachers in the world, perhaps. He is now about 73 years of age, but his energy and voice is as brisk as a much younger man. He has a very pleasing personality, very sincere, very devotional and you might say just an old-fashioned preacher. His services are counting people by the thousands. He uses the song books of England and the songs have a peculiar reverence and create a feeling of worshipful solemnity.

The Gypsy Smith campaign is non-sectarian, and the Abilene meeting is one of six in the United States. He has been coming to this country from time to time for many years. He recently celebrated his 60th year as an outstanding preacher. Kings and presidents and dignitaries all over the world honored Gypsy in messages of congratulations. Nature says not so many years yet will he continue his good work to men, and this is an opportunity for West Texas people to hear him.

Sunday afternoon was "Men's Service." From all the towns in this section of the West were men present. Perhaps 3,500 men and about 500 women, besides a special woman's meeting in a nearby auditorium.

The singing was grand, being led by a great choir, and backed by a great grand piano. Gypsy believes in singing, and it was through singing that he caught the eye and ears of the world when he was a mere Gypsy lad. His life's history is extremely interesting. Born in a Gypsy wagon-tent, reared to "rustle," no education, no training, motherless at six years with three sisters and one brother and a broken-hearted father. This sad situation was changed to one of decency and happiness when they all became singing Christians. They sang their way into the hearts of English people. Early in life becoming workers in the Salvation Army. Gypsy at one place won so many people, was so deeply appreciated they offered him a great gold watch. Salvation Army rules forbid gifts—Gypsy took the watch and other religious denominations sponsored his work. He later came to the U. S. A. and the protestant churches sponsored his preaching and today no evangelist in the world holds such a place in the hearts of Christianity. To hear Gypsy Smith once is to wish to hear him again. Sunday night may be your last opportunity.

A LONE REPUBLICAN: As you ramble around you quite often see something unique, unusual, strikingly prominent, in the midst of the everyday and the common — this caught our attention last Sunday at the Gypsy Smith meeting in Abilene when 3599 men Democrats gathered to hear a sermon by the great Gypsy evangelist of England. Maybe not exactly 3599 democrats and ONE Republican, but it looked that way.

A few minutes before the services started, a nice, prim looking young fellow worked his way to the front, wearing a large Sunflower on his lapel. It was so outstanding, so rare, so bright, so by itself (it caused us to look for other fellows, maybe from Kansas. For the Sunflower is the state flower of that prominent state, and perhaps if we were in some Northern state such decorations would be so thick they would not attract attention. But down here in a revival meeting in Texas, among 99 per cent democrats, on Sunday, it left the impression that a visitor from Kansas was there. The Landen smile was the center of the petals. We remarked that, that was real state pride, or at least a hopeful Texas man looking forward to an appointment to some government position should the Sunflower candidate be elected. At least it showed courage in the midst of opponents.

Down here in Texas we do not realize "political zeal" that is now holding high tension in "close states." One Lone Republican, not one speck of criticism for his loyalty, only the time and place was a little inappropriate. In our great nation it is wonderful how close friends can differ, how different we can think, how, after all campaigns and ugly charges and counter charges are made, we bow to the majority success, like good sports, and continue to build for wider happiness. Four years then pass and we begin all over again. Those who were "IN" said and did the wrong thing, as viewed by those who failed to get in. Not many Democrats would likely go into a religious meeting in Republican-Maine, on Sunday, wearing the Democrat Donkey. It takes lots of grit to wear the bright Sunflower here in Texas, like the fellow did in Abilene.

WAR IN SPAIN

People who read the news accounts of the terrible happenings in Spain are likely to obtain an inaccurate idea of the causes behind the war. The present government has been described in the daily news as being controlled by Communists, Anarchists, and Socialists of varying degree. The American abhorrence of anything that smacks of bolshevism and anarchy has produced a feeling of sympathy for the cause of the Fascist rebels which is in no sense justified.

The situation in Spain until recently was not greatly different from that which produced the French revolution nearly 150 years ago. The great mass of the people were landless peasants or poverty-stricken urban workers who put in long hours at low wages. The country was controlled by an ultra-privileged small minority composed of large landowners, high army officials, and the Catholic Church. As in Mexico until the days of Obregon, Calles, and Cardenas, the Catholic Church owned a large part of the wealth of the nation. It is said to have owned one-third of all the wealth in Spain, although that may be an exaggeration.

Last February the people of Spain by a large majority elected a democratic government committed to social and economic reforms that would better the lot of the common people. There was not a single Socialist, Anarchist, or Communist in position of importance in the newly elected government.

The government set in cautiously to inaugurate its reform movement. That precipitated the revolution. The landowners, the army, and the Church had enjoyed their privileges so long that they regarded them as rights. They couldn't take it, so they rebelled.

The great majority of the Spanish people are on the side of the government. But the rebels have the greater part of the army with its trained soldiers, efficient military leadership, and heavy armament, plus the wealth of the Church and other privileged classes. It has been a case of men against munitions. And

DON'T WORRY FRIENDS WITH PERSONAL TROUBLES

Janet first tells you she can't afford the trip or the matinee or the hair-do and then proceeds to indulge in all of them.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

IT IS a strange truth about our muddled lives that usually there is just one thing that is worrying us profoundly. If that ONE thing could be settled or changed everything would be wonderful!

The simplicity with which women admit this would be funny if it wasn't somehow so pathetic. They go on from school days to young womanhood, from bridal hours to the serious business of home-making and child-bearing, from youth to age, eternally explaining that it is just this or just that, that keeps their minds from being completely at rest.

We never seem smart enough to learn that it always will be this way. Then even when the last hour of all arrives, and the family gathers for the long parting, and the doctors are packing up their little bags to go on to the next case, that there will be still just that one thing between us and peace—one child or grandchild about whom to worry, one unwritten letter or undelivered message to haunt us as we start on the long journey.

Lucy, for example, doesn't like the Morrison house. Lucy married Harry Morrison seventeen years ago, and his parents gave them the big, ugly comfortable old place for their home. Lucy's children have been born there, they've had Christmas trees and measles and birthdays and picnics, they've turned the old sewing room into a sleeping porch and put in extension telephones and radios and new bathrooms, but still Lucy doesn't like the Morrison house! "We're still in that dreadful old red shingled mausoleum," said Lucy to me in 1914, when she had been married about a year. "You know we're still in the old place, and it never will seem like home to me!" she told me again last week, when I met her in the market.

Janet, on the other hand, has lived in all sorts of fascinating houses and countries. But Janet never has enough money. She never forgets for one second that she and Tom haven't enough money. If they go abroad she explains it in a scandalized aside: "Imagine beggars like us on the 'Paris'!" If they stay at home every phase of every subject upon which Janet's brilliant conversation touches is the money phase. Her daughters have been well educated in private schools. "Don't ask me how we did it," says Janet, "for, of course, we were miles in debt!" Whether she has one servant or seven Janet is always poor. She first tells you that she can't possibly afford the trip or the matinee or the hair-do, and then proceeds to indulge in them. She never gives a penny to charity, "because we simply haven't got it!"

Those who love Janet get sick of the topic of money. What her bridge losses were, what her doctor bills were, what she lost at contract, what Nancy's teeth-straightening is costing, what opera seats are—these are all you hear from Janet. For thirty years she has had no other topic of conversation, or rather all topics have led straight to this one. "My dear, if I had enough money I'd be the happiest woman in the world!" Janet says.

Mary's trouble is Jacky. Her other four children are perfect specimens, her husband is successful and devoted and charming, married sisters and her mother live near, and adore her—but in Mary's story there is always the tragedy of Jacky. Something in Jacky's bone-structure is wrong, and Jacky, nine years old now, will never walk.

He is content, busy, he works and studies and laughs and makes models of ships and airplanes and reads about Nils and Tarzan and twiggly like any other boy; everyone in the family adores him. Jacky is a completely happy child. But try can't leave it that way. "Why God send me so much and then me this bitter cross?" she asks friends, over and over again. "I'd have given him up in death, to have my beautiful baby crippled—never to play football and run and swim and race with the others! too much. I wish I had never married, and never had a child!" Thousands of persons in the last few years have made their one individual grievance the bad luck of '99. Things are going better now, and they are eating and sleeping comfortably; everyone has some-thing gotten through. But they can't forget those thousands—those beautiful thousands—that were lost in bad investments. Why, they could all have gone abroad for a year, they could have bought the house and the car and built a brick wall and put Georgiana through college with that money!

It seems too horrible that it was THEIRS—they HAD it—and now it's gone forever. I know one woman who has reproached her husband with the loss of their fortune every day for five years, and I suppose there are many like her. All the events of these sixty vital months, the changes and chances and ups and downs have been colored for her by the memory of that money. "Lewis WOULD invest it that way—it was oil, and oil couldn't fail," she says bitterly. "I couldn't say a thing—how did I know it was like throwing it away!" She reminds her children of it. "You could do it ten times over if Dad hadn't lost all that money!" she says. Her friends can hardly venture a conversational opening without eliciting her patient, "Well, we lost everything in 1929, you know," in reply.

To thousands of other women the necessity of having some other person in their lives is the unendurable thing. If Mama, or Cousin Ella, or Grandpa was just—well, pleasantly settled somewhere else, the house would run so easily, there would be nothing amiss!

Everyone of us has something—something small and annoying and burdensome, just the one thing of all others with which we feel ourselves least able to bear. Not a great sorrow—we can rise to that. But just something—something that stands between us and the full sunlight.

It is a wise woman who learns to expect this small percentage of imperfection in her life, and accepts it. It is a wise woman who learns that if it disappears in one form it will most certainly present itself in another, that no life is lived without galling conditions of one sort or another. The real difficulty is perhaps that being imperfect ourselves we create imperfections in our separate schemes. Or perhaps our defective ideals of civilization leave these gaps.

Whatever the cause, since a constantly changing program of small troubles is an inescapable part of our lives it is sensible to train ourselves to bear them with dignity and courage, and to spare our friends as much of them as we can. There is no pleasure in the world any keener than to meet a friend known to be having difficult times and to realize that she is more than adequate to the demand Fate is making of her; to find her cheerful and resolute and busy where we expected to find her crushed and helpless.

Many, many years ago a fine old Englishman who used to live in our part of the California mountains told me that for a certain time in his life he used to turn his diary's pages three months ahead and write down specifically what was worrying him at the moment.

He said it was absolutely shocking to work through the days and weeks to reach those entries, and discover that the shame and anxiety of April were forgotten completely in July, that July had its own new set of humiliations and worries. The habit perhaps helped to make him the philosopher he became in his old age; nothing troubled him when I knew him, and it was he who gave me the phrase that I have said to myself almost every day for more than thirty-five years.

"To him that loveth God all things work together for good."

Longest Single Railroad

The Trans-Siberian railway is the longest single railroad in the world, stretching 4,500 miles across the Asiatic continent. It was first planned in 1850, but construction was delayed until 1891 when Count Witte obtained the czar's approval for the work to begin. The Siberian part was completed by 1898.

"Painter of Kings"

Baron Francois Pascal Gerard, French artist, was called "the painter of kings" because most of the leading men and women of the French empire sat for him. He was appointed court painter to Louis XVIII, from whom he received the rank of baron.

IF

IF, IF, IF, one of the smallest words in the English language, is the greatest stumbling block known to man. Some people have built their lives around this principle of "if" and as a consequence they have been uncertain, full of doubt and wavering perplexity, through the years. Doubt is lack of faith. It is a form of worry. Worry is the arch-enemy of mankind. Repeatedly have I heard people of unsettled mind say: "If I were only sure; if I had thus and thus; if I were young; if I could only begin again; if I hadn't done that; if I were young again; if such a thing hadn't happened!"

Usually following an "if" comes its close sequel—regrets. For as the poet has expressed it—"Of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these, 'It might have been.'" All these "ifs" piled high are not as effective as one definitely planned course of action. Taken with a courageous step, a brave risk as to the outcome and a spirit of a good loser, come what may. If one has done his best, angels can do no more. This is where faith begins, for if our faith is worth anything at all, it should strengthen our belief in the promise that "all things work together for good to those who trust in God."

The "if" philosophy has unfitted potential leaders for public service, lives that were meant to be strong builders of the nation, all because they could not hurdle some insignificant but tremendous "if" in their lives.

During the depression, in many homes, some of these "if" nightmares have really come to pass. But, strange to say, we find we are all living, loving and laughing in the same old way in spite of the fact that the bank went under carrying our life's savings and perhaps our next winter's coat. Something has come to us in return, perhaps it is more gratitude in our hearts for what is really left us than we felt before our loss.

When we live on a material plane these "ifs" bother us most like mosquitoes. If we step to a higher intellectual plane they come less often into our minds—when we even touch the spiritual side of life, they come not at all into our lives, the "ifs" are gone, for we attain a tranquility that passeth human understanding. It is akin to God.

Eradicate the "if" philosophy from your life today, whether you are fifteen years old or fifty years young, and substitute in its place, the peace giving assurance of: "I trust in God and all is well."

THE KATY ISSUES

TEXAS HISTORY BOOKLET

An unusual contribution to Texas literature issued in connection with its Centennial, is a brief, but stirringly interesting history of the state authored for the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Lines by J. Frank Davis, noted San Antonio writer and historian. Compressed into an amazingly few words, considering the vastness of the subject, the history is extremely comprehensive and omits no single feature of historical importance. Attractively printed, the booklet contains also brief life histories of seven of the state's immortals, for whom lounge and dining cars operating on the Katy Lines have been named.

The booklet is being distributed by the Katy to its patron in all part of the country, to Texas school officials, members of historical societies and others, as one of its contributions to the observance of the state's centennial.

Purpose of the booklet as described in a foreword by Matthew S.

Sloan, chairman of the board and president, is not only "to pay tribute to the state it honors and in whose life and progress it has had an active part for 64 years, but to spread to other sections a greater understanding and appreciation of the history of which all Texans are so justifiably proud."

Mr. Davis tells the story of Texas from the time the Spanish explorers encountered the friendly Tejas Indians—from whom the state derived its name—with an economy of words that serves to make its stirring struggle for development and independence doubly impressive, and his sketches of Austin, Houston, Travis, Bowie, Crockett, Bonham, and Fannin are masterpieces of dramatic brevity.

The Katy's booklet will no doubt be in wide demand, especially by those who want a ready reference to salient facts about Texas, and it will serve admirably as an elementary text book concerning a state whose future, as Mr. Davis declares, "promise to be truly as great as its unique past."

Mother, I can't Study—My head hurts!

AS A USUAL THING, he is "such a regular guy." He comes home from school full of pep and energy. Of course you want him that way always. But are you protecting his health and safety during the few short months of winter when he must spend his evenings indoors?

That uncomfortable "stuffy" feeling . . . dullness . . . lowered vitality . . . headache—these are some of nature's ways of complaining against improper heating and insufficient ventilation. These are the warning signals that America's Public Health Enemy Number One, the common cold germ, has found another fertile field in which to attack. For your health's sake and that of your loved ones do not wait for these definite signs of warning that the air indoors has become stale. Keep the air you breathe constantly purified with fresh oxygen through adequate ventilation in every room in the house.

Without oxygen man cannot live. Without oxygen, fuel cannot burn. Therefore, if your family "huddles" in one or two rooms around an open flame heater during cold weather with the doors and windows tightly closed, you are violating all the rules of nature, good health and good heating. Sooner or later the occupants of the room and the burning fuel reduce the oxygen content to the point where the room air becomes stale. Without adequate ventilation and circulation the air indoors may become as foul and unhealthy as that of the tenement slums of large cities, even though your home may be the most beautiful in the neighborhood.

A simple and easy method of providing a constant circulation of fresh air is found by opening a window in each room slightly. Connecting doors left open between adjoining rooms when the entire house is adequately heated provide a natural circulation of pure warm air from one room to another.

Guard the health of your loved ones with adequate heat and proper ventilation of pure, warmed air in every room in the house.

Compound was originated from the experience of an army doctor during the World War and has been amazingly successful in thousands of cases. Go to the INZER PHARMACY today and ask for R.U.X. Compound. The first bottle must be satisfactory to you—must prove its worth to you—or the trial will cost you nothing!

Twice Sworn In

TWO of our Presidents had the distinction of being inaugurated twice in the same term. They were Rutherford Birchard Hayes and Calvin Coolidge.

Hayes' inauguration day, March 4, 1877, came on a Sunday so the inauguration ceremonies were scheduled for the following Monday. But because tradition had established March 4 as the date for a President to take the oath of office, Hayes took it on Sunday as a precaution against there arising any question of the legality of his taking it on March 5. He took it again the following day in the formal inauguration ceremonies.

The story of how the oath of office was administered to Calvin Coolidge in the lamp-lit Vermont farm house of his father, Col. John Coolidge, upon receipt of the news of the death of President Harding, is a familiar one to all Americans. But it is not so well known that a few days later a second oath was administered to him in a room in the Willard hotel in Washington by A. A. Hoehling, a justice of the District of Columbia Supreme court.

Harry M. Daugherty, then attorney general, had questioned the validity of the first oath administered to Coolidge. As a justice of the peace, Colonel Coolidge was a state officer and therefore presumably had authority to swear in state officials but not federal officers. So Daugherty secretly arranged the ceremony in the Willard and on a hotel Bible Calvin Coolidge took the oath of office a second time.

REHABILITATION LOANS

Rehabilitation loans for the new crop year are now being authorized by the Resettlement Administration, but lack of funds, requires the number and amount to be more restricted than during the past year, it was announced today by Clarence Simes, county supervisor.

"New borrowers in drought or flood areas will receive what we term emergency loans; for purchase of seed, feed and supplies for human subsistence," the supervisor said. "We are not authorized to make any new 'standard rehabilitation' loans, which are for the purchase of teams and equipment, as well as supplies. We made such standard loans last winter to 126 farmers of this county, a large number of whom were thereby enabled to buy teams and equipment and to continue farming operation, or to resume operations. Where these previous borrowers now require supplementary loans, we are authorized to make them, for the purchase of necessary supplies."

The supervisor said that most of the previous borrowers will repay this fall the amount borrowed for "consumable goods", such as food, clothing, seed and feed. They have up to five years in which to repay the amount advanced for "recoverable" goods, such as teams and tools.

Borrowers who have demonstrated that they cannot be rehabilitated will be dropped from the program. In passing judgment on these, due consideration will be given to obstacles encountered, such as adverse weather conditions, poor land, and sickness. First consideration for supplementary loans and grants will be given to those whose past performance "has demonstrated thrift, initiative, a willingness to work, a cooperative attitude and a proper regard for their obligations."

WHEN chocolate is one of the ingredients, it's a base libel to call it a cottage pudding! For with such a luxurious touch this homely favorite might more aptly be called a "Palace Pudding." But what's in a name — so for old times' sake we'll still call it

Chocolate Cottage Pudding

1 1/4 cups sifted cake flour; 1 1/2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder; 1/4 teaspoon salt; 4 tablespoons butter or other shortening; 1 cup sugar; 2 egg yolks, well beaten; 1 1/2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted; 1/4 teaspoon vanilla; 1/2 cup milk; 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream well. Add egg yolks and beat thoroughly; then chocolate and vanilla. Add flour, alternately with milk, beating after each addition until smooth. Fold in egg whites. Turn into greased pan, 8x12 inches. Bake in moderate oven (325° F.) 50 minutes, or until done. Remove from pan, cool, warm or cold with plain or whipped cream. Serves 12.

THIS WEEK IN TEXAS HISTORY

BY F. L. McDONALD

WEEK OF OCT. 18:

1835—On October 20 a committee was appointed to consider mail facilities.

1836—Sam Houston was inaugurated president of the Texas Republic on October 22, and Mirabeau Lamar, vice president. Up to this time Houston had served as commander in chief of the Texas army.

1839—The brig, "Colorado" was delivered in Galveston on Oct. 18. It was one of the six ships ordered for the Texas navy.

1840—Captain E. W. Jordan fought his way out of a trap near Saltillo on October 23, leaving 400 Mexicans dead.

1854—The cornerstone of the first barracks was laid at Fort Davis on October 23 by frontier guardsmen acting under orders from the war department.—Texas State College for Women (CIA).

Why shield them from every danger except EYESTRAIN?

Isn't their sight worth enough to make you find out what your lighting may be doing to it?

● You bundle up your children against cold and rain. You see that they are tucked snugly in bed at night. You are constantly on guard lest they be harmed in some way. You try to shield them from every danger . . . but are you sure about eyestrain?

Sight is their most precious possession. Yet do you let them read and play on the floor where the light is never adequate for even simple visual work? Can you say for sure whether the lighting in your home is letting your children's eyes develop normally? Do you know that your child has enough light for his studying tasks?

Don't guess—be sure. There has been too much guessing about proper lighting. And mainly because of improper lighting, one child in every five has defective vision by the time he finishes grade school. The ratio increases to two out of five by the time they reach college age.

The I.E.S. Indirect Floor and Student Lamp is a simple, economical way to be sure that your child is studying under proper lighting conditions. What is more, the entire family can enjoy and will appreciate this modern, better light. See these lamps on display . . . today!

throws light to ceiling,
eliminates shadows.

Glass bowl softens light, prevents glare.

Wide shade spreads
light over wide area.
